Standard language in guidelines – see the response to the fourth annual consultation on miscellaneous amendments for more detail

Reference	Text
Α	Step 1 – Determining the offence category
	The court should determine the offence category with reference only to the factors in the tables below. In order to determine the category the court should assess culpability and harm .
В	Culpability
	Where there are factors present from more than one category of culpability, the court should weigh those factors in order to decide which category most resembles the offender's case.
С	Harm
	Where there are factors present from more than one category of harm, the court should weigh those factors in order to decide which category most resembles the offender's case.
	Step 2 – Starting point and category range
D	Having determined the category at step one, the court should use the corresponding starting point to reach a sentence within the category range in the table below. The starting point applies to all offenders irrespective of plea or previous convictions.
	An adjustment from the starting point, upwards or downwards, may be necessary to reflect particular features of culpability and/or harm (for example, the presence of multiple factors within one category, the presence of factors from more than one category (where not already taken into account at step 1), or where a case falls close to a borderline between categories).
E	The tables below contain a non-exhaustive list of additional factual elements providing the context of the offence and factors relating to the offender. Identify whether any combination of these, or other relevant factors, should result in a further upward or downward adjustment. In some cases, having considered these factors, it may be appropriate to move outside the identified category range.

The table below notes guidelines where changes have been made:

- X indicates that the wording has changed (in some cases the wording will have been adjusted from that above).
- Blanks indicate that no change has been made (either because there is a reason not to use the standard wording or because the standard wording was already in use).
